Komprachcice (Gumpertsdorf)

1. Shelters built during the war by the Germans, and now used as ammunition dumps, are located to the west and south of Komprachcice, about two kilometers from the military airfield at Nowa Wies (Neudorf). They are hidden in the ground up to half or three-quarters of their elevation. The area covered by the ammunition dumps is about 800 by 800 square meters, and is enclosed by a barbed wire fence. The number of shelters is not known, but the military guard for them consisted of 40 men, and it is supplied by the garrison at Opole. A narrow-guage railroad line connects the ammunition dumps with the airfield at Nowa Wies.

Opole (Oppeln)

2. An infantry unit is quartered in the former German barracks on ul. Niemodlinska, which consist of about 10 three-story blocks. Three or four tanks of T-34 type were observed in the area. During the winter soldiers from these barracks carried out exercises on skis.
